

As you come up the hill on Main St. going east, have you ever wondered what that white building once was? That was the Primas Bluff Saloon . . . a very busy place as you can see in the old photo. William Primas, who was an immigrant from Bohemia, began operating the Bluff Saloon at the corner of Main Street and Glen Crossing Road in 1891. The property is still owned by a Primas family member having been passed down through the years.

Look for historic photo posters similar to this on display during Homecoming 2018.
